

National Teaching Award

The Associated Schools of Construction National Teaching Award is made annually to a faculty member of a four-year ASC member school. This award recognizes the faculty member's contribution to construction education, excellence in teaching, and dedication to the construction profession.

Eligibility

Any non-tenured, tenure track faculty member with a minimum two years of teaching experience from an Associated Schools of Construction member school is eligible.

Application

Students, colleagues, him/herself or any other person familiar with the faculty member's qualifications may nominate a faculty member. The Associated Schools of Construction must receive the attached application form and any supporting documentation by February 16th.

Screening and Award

Every member school can submit applicants per the requirements listed in the operating procedures. Those applications should be sent directly to the Regional Director 5 days prior to the scheduled regional meeting. This award is not limited to one per region.

The award recipient will receive a plaque.

Nominations

Nominations for the National Teaching Award will be accepted from any ASC faculty member.
